ABOUT US

TKB global Pre-schools

The Pre-school education throughout the world has undergone significant change in the past decade. In today's world, it promotes individual-centric approaches using new themes like creativity, critical thinking and socio-emotional literacy. Conceptualised way back in 1999 when our chairman witnessed an amazing exhibit entitled, "The hundred languages of children" in San Francisco which showcased a myriad of children's ideas, interpreted and documented by educators from the pre-schools of Reggio Emilia, a small city in Northern Italy.

The schools of Reggio Emilia have earned international fame for its innovative pedagogy and powerful practice-based theory in Pre-school education. The success of this approach is attributed to its open-ended, child-centered learning. This unique educational philosophy promotes an educational culture of collaboration, observation and documentation and focuses on child as an active, competent learner, whilst celebrating the active role of environment as the third teacher.
